

Happy Holidays from the Ware household and FCG 2012

100% fact-free newsletter

Two investment traders walk into work on Monday morning.

First trader: Over the weekend, I got a dog for my husband.

Second trader: Great trade!

This joke used to be funny. Now it strikes a little close to home. The cartoon below is not far from our truth:

Look Jim, here's a little puppy that needs a home. It's so cute!

At last count, we had four dogs in the house. (I haven't checked for new ones today.) Janey's Xmas gift to me was this book:

I want to be on record as stating: "I like dogs!" But we are rapidly a call to Guinness. It's getting harder to see the Xmas presents under the tree:

The most recent canine addition is Bud, the Boxer in the upper left. Bud and Dwain (Jane's dad) were a "package deal" and arrived in July to live with us. (Some of you wonder why I travel...) The girls— Nikki (10) and Alex (11)-- love the dogs and are seriously pushing for more...as seen in mischievous grins.

The Ware house is long dogs and also blessings. Good health, prosperity, lots of laughter, spiritual community (wonderful new church affiliation), and three grandparents with us for the holidays. So just remember, if you are short dogs and need to "cover your bet" you know whom to call.

Blessings from all of the folks at

Happy Holidays from the Ware household and FCG 2012

100% fact-free newsletter

In keeping with our tradition of never discussing FCG business in these newsletters, we chose to highlight the “better halves” of our team members. These life partners put up with our heavy travel schedules and crazy deadlines. Bless their generous hearts. Pictured clockwise from the top left: Chris Heisinger, Mary Robinson, Suzanne Falk, and Ron Ercoli

My better half, Jane, is pictured singing a Xmas carol at our holiday party. I am either singing or belching, hard to tell.

Rounding out the FCG team for 2012 are the “master coaches”: Hank Kinzie, Jack Skeen and Robert Chender. One of whom is pictured below at our holiday party, we just don’t know which one...

Our work allows us to meet not only senior investment professionals but celebrities from different walks of life.

Sincere best wishes,
The FCG team
